

PERSONAL CODE

We will be collecting data at different points during the next four weeks. In order to match your data up without ever identifying you or collecting information that can be tracked back to you, we are asking you to use these questions to create a personal code. You may be asked by your time study observer or the research coordinator for your code. If you forget your code, they can provide you these questions at any time to accurately recreate it.

It is important you read each item carefully and respond accurately, so your code is the same every time you produce it.

Your code will never be stored with any personally-identifying information about you.
